

War Agencies Are Slashed In Appropriations for 1946

Washington, June 1 (AP)—The House appropriation committee today cut sharply into the 1946 fiscal year funds for a group of war agencies in a bill it described as "the beginning of the end" of such agencies.

With one exception, the committee trimmed budget estimates for every agency which already had been reduced by President Truman, as it sent the $769,764,850 measure to the floor for House action next week. The exception was a $325,000 allotment for operation of state marine schools, which the committee left untouched.

"This bill," the committee told the House, "marks the beginning of the end of those agencies established during the war to develop and maintain the war production machine to furnish the necessary civilian assistance to the armed forces, and to adjust the civilian economy to wartime necessity."

Many of the domestic controls adopted during the war, the committee said, are "foreign to the American way of life" and "should be eased as rapidly as progress of the war will permit and abolished as soon as the national security no longer requires them."

The entire Shuri position is being pinched out," Admiral Nimitz said in his communiqué, strongly indicating that little more than mopping up is expected there.

There have been indications for several days that the Japanese have been withdrawing from Shuri and it was wholly likely that only a minor force remains.

If this is true, the final stand may come in the rugged but less strongly-fortified highlands to the south. The principal resistance was on the eastern flank, where the Seventh Infantry Division under Maj. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce threatened the enemy's entire central island position in a drive south and west. Advance elements of the Seventh captured two elevations near the town of Chan, about a mile and a half, due south of Shuri. This column was last reported within two miles of a junction with forward units of Maj. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd Jr.'s Sixth Marine Division, moving southward from Naha.

Wet weather has slowed mechanized maneuvers and transformed the battle into a foot soldier fight. Conversely, it may be an assistance in easing the way, for extremely heavy rains and electrical storms halted all enemy air activity.

ported today that of the original Okinawa garrison of 85,000 troops, 61,518 have been killed and 1,353 captured in the two-month campaign. The two-week stiff Naha-Shuri-Xonabaru line cost the Japanese 13,415 dead and 315 captured. The Japanese casualty figures, showing a sustained 1,000 killed a day, compared with American dead and missing of 9,602 as of May 24. The U. S. figures include those for the Navy, Marine Corps and Army. No records of Japanese naval dead are known here.

greatest concentration of industries including the Sumitomo plant, and broke out in nearby Amasaka.

An Osaka army communiqué claimed 47 Superforts were shot down and 53 others damaged.

Some returning pilots reported heavy antiaircraft fire but most of them described it as meager to moderate.

"The Jap was plenty heavy," said Sgt. Frank A. Rybik, a tail-gunner from Greensboro, Pa., "but we were lucky. They seemed to concentrate it on the squadron next to us. We saw them get one B-29 which hit the water near the coast and blew up."

Rybik was sure much of the "undercast" he saw was "mostly smoke." Lt. Luther P. Chunn of Fort Worth, Tex., estimated smoke was rising as high as 27,000 feet when his squadron came over—the 15th to make the attack. He said a 10-mile-an-hour wind fanned the fires.

Daylight Strike

Today's strike was made in broad daylight, in contrast with the last heavy fire raid on Osaka when more than 2,000 unescorted B-29s dropped over 2,000 tons of incendiaries in the early morning darkness.

The Osaka raid was the fourth in nine days against three of Honshu's Island's most vital war centers. B-29's dropped more than 8,500 tons of incendiaries on Tokyo in two visits, Thursday and Saturday, and hit Yokohama with 3,200 tons Tuesday.

Last week's raids caused Tokyo radio to scream that the enemy capital was virtually burned out. Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, commander of the 21st Bomber Command, announced that his 883 Republican presidential nominee, today accepted the invitation of President Truman to confer with him in Washington. Dewey wrote Truman, who last week invited him and Alfred M. Landon, 1936

Osaka is located centrally on Honshu. It had a population of him at any time on national and 3,032,340 and was among Japan's most densely populated cities, the glad to talk with the President with an average of 45,000 persons per square mile.

New York, June 1 (AP)—Ralls and industrials rallied on a selective basis in today's stock market although many leaders were unable to overcome further light offerings.

Early selling was so timid that customers reinstated some of their commitments on the idea Thursday's reaction was virtually all technical and that idle investment cash could get the list back on the upgrade if no bearish change in the news eventuated. Talk of more cuts on speculation made for persistent caution. Easing of the Syrian situation was helpful.

Bids began to arrive before mid-day and dealings, slow for a time, picked up a trifle. Prices were irregularly higher near the fourth hour.

Bonds were mixed. Grain futures dipped.

LOANS FOR SMALL WAR PLANTS
Hundreds of small manufacturers, making thousands of essential civilian products, are eligible for loans from the Smaller War Plants Corporation, a department set up by Congress to aid small manufacturing plants.

Regional loan agents may make loans for war on "essential civilian production" up to $50,000 without awaiting Washington approval and may make loans up to $100,000 where banks participate for 20 per cent. Products on the relative essentiality list include thousands of items, from wearing apparel and baby carriages to mop wringers. The value of all items in the proposed list would represent well over half of the value of all manufactured goods in 1939.

The agency is empowered to make loans to enable small business concerns to finance the acquisition of equipment, facilities, machinery, supplies, or materials or to supply such concerns with capital to be used in the manufacture of articles, equipment, supplies or materials for war or essential civilian purposes.

This seems a very wise way in assisting business management handle the reconversion of industry, rather than to do it by direct government control. It is really industry's job, anyway. A shrewd statement along this line is made by Chairman J. A. Krug of the production board, when he says:

"The danger confronting us is, as I see it, that we will overlook the natural resilience of the economy, the capacity of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers to adapt themselves to changed conditions and hence quickly to utilize the resources released from munitions production. If we were to attempt in Washington to see that every manufacturer, wholesaler or retailer got his exact share of relaxed manpower and materials, we would be lost in a myriad of rules and regulations. We would get in the way of reconversion, rather than speed it."

All in all, government and business have got along surprisingly well in these difficult war times by a mutual spirit of give and take, flavored with a reasonable amount of patriotism.

MANKILLING JOBS
Winston Churchill at 70 is seeking a new lease of power. President Roosevelt died worn out at 63. The presidency seems in general to be more of a mankilling job than the premiership.

Only two presidents have been in the White House when they were 70. Andrew Jackson and James Buchanan were just finishing their terms at this age. William Henry Harrison died at the beginning of his term; he was 68 and would have been 72 if he had lived to serve his entire four years.

Against that is the record of Lord Palmerston, the prime minister who nearly involved the United States in war with England during our Civil War. He became prime minister for the first time at 71, and with a year's interruption ruled until his death at 81. Benjamin Disraeli won his first great election victory at 70, and governed vigorously for the next six years. His rival Gladstone began his second premiership at 71, his third at 77, and his fourth at 83, continuing in office two more years.

With all that the prime minister has to do, the record indicates that it is less than is required of the president.

RED POINTS
Should eaters in restaurants be made to give up red points? Mayor La Guardia of New York City says so, and has good arguments to back him.

Curiously enough, the restaurants are among the chief objectors. Bookkeeping troubles are their chief reason. Also they say that often they serve dishes like stew, which would be hard to translate into the proper number of red points.

Anybody who has been in the army will get the point about stew. And what about that ancient mystery, hash?

Tokyo is burning down, burning down—and somehow we don't seem able to feel very sorry about it.

'These Days'

By George E. Sokolsky

THE PEREGRINATIONS OF EARL BROWDER
The Communist party is an international, disciplined conspiracy for the conquest of countries by revolution in the interest of Soviet Russia with the objective of establishing a uniform political, social, economic and intellectual system based upon Marxist materialism as modified by Lenin and Stalin.

Fatuous optimists and sanguine emotionalists choose to blind their eyes and deafen their ears to the history and tactics of this vast conspiracy which has been in existence in one form or another since 1848 and which, since 1917, has had behind it the financial and organizational support of a government that has grown increasingly powerful and effective with 28 years of experience. Those who have recognized the peril have been denounced as "Red-baiters," "Fascists," "Anti-Semites," "Pro-Jim Crowers," and similar epithets, all of which mean nothing in the face of this most dangerous evil which pervades this world.

The character of the discipline of this party and its utter disregard for the interests and purposes of its indigenous country, its single loyalty to Soviet Russia and its willingness to change and twist and switch its thought and action in obedience to Stalin's will, is most clearly demonstrated by the conduct of the American Communist party and its leader, Earl Browder.

When the European War commenced on September 1, 1939, Russia was in alliance with Germany. The American Communist party was then anti-war. It organized many "united front" organizations with the object of preventing the United States from preparing for and participating in the war. The only member of Congress who voted against preparedness was Vito Marcantonio of New York, who has always followed the party line. Such organizations as the American Committee for Struggle Against War, American Council on Soviet Relations, Friends of the Soviet Union, American League for Peace and Democracy, American League Against War and Fascism, American Peace Mobilization, American Students Union, American Youth Congress, Anti-Imperialist League, Chicago Peace Congress, Chicago Peace Mobilization, Committee for Peace Through World Cooperation, the Emergency Peace Mobilization, International Labor Defense, International Workers Order, and numerous others conducted a vast agitation not only against war but even against preparedness.

The slogan was, "The Yanks Are Not Coming." The White House was picketed. President Roosevelt was hoisted at a Communist meeting and the Communist Press attacked him as a Fascist. Suddenly, on June 22, 1941, Germany went to war with Soviet Russia and Mr. Browder changed his line without an apparent qualm of conscience. The Communists acted as though they had never been opposed to war. In fact, they became an agency of persecution against those who so much as questioned the virtues of Rooseveltian internationalism which only a few hours before they had denounced as the spawn of British imperialism.

The vast Communist propaganda machine was focussed on two targets: First, to make Soviet Russia and particularly Joe Stalin sacrosanct in American eyes. It was all right to attack or criticize Roosevelt, Churchill, de Gaulle, Darlan, the Pope, anybody or anything, but it became a crime equivalent to murder and treason to question even slightly and gently the perfections of Russia and Stalin. Secondly, they exaggerated beyond all evidence Russia's contributions to the war, Russia's industrial strength, Russia's military might. They created an atmosphere even in this country that Soviet Russia won this war in spite of America's superior contributions to victories including $9,000,000 of Lend-Lease to Russia.

Now, Browder orders another change. Apparently, Stalin does not believe that there is much more to get out of the United States. He keeps our military and diplomatic officers out of cities to which they have every right to go. He flaunts his petulance like a school girl showing her temperament to a bored swain. He deprives us of truthful news from areas our troops have conquered.

He orders an attack on the American Communists for supporting a policy which he supported while the going was good. So Mr. Browder publishes the attack upon himself in the "Daily Worker" of which he is the editor. He turns his face towards Moscow and reverently obeys his boss. On May 24, the line changed again. The American Communists now are opposed to the United States. The Revolution is on again.

HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

Before World War I, I was examining regularly the boys of a large preparatory school. A report of my findings was sent to the parents. The principal told me he was surprised to learn that the parents seemed to be more interested in my report than in his report as to the boy's standing in his studies. I told him that if he were a parent it would mean more to him to know the physical condition of his boy than about his school standing.

For years it would appear that health departments did not appreciate the difficulties caused in a school by some of their regulations, and education departments, on the other hand, did not sufficiently appreciate the importance of child and community health. It comes, then, as a pleasing for step to learn of the Health Instruction Program of the Oregon State Department of Health for the Oregon High Schools, as outlined in an editorial of the American Medical Association.

Part I concerns the major health problems of living; administrative aspect of the major health problems of living including care of the body to promote health and to improve the appearance, the development and maintenance of organic vigor and body symmetry through play and recreation, plus similar units on diet, communicable diseases, accident prevention, social living, sex, consumer problems and healthy community surroundings.

Part II consists of health guide units usually for classroom use.

Part III is still in preparation; it is described as "a discussion of the facts of your public school Health Instruction programs in Oregon including an example of health scope and a follow through or record of the child's progress over the years."

This work is under the direction of a joint committee which includes (a) representatives of the state department of education, (b) the state board of health, and (c) the state system of higher education.

The big point about the above is that these two important service branches of the state are co-operating so fully in a program which means health and happiness to the individual and to the community.

LEE G. MILLER'S COLUMN

By LEE G. MILLER

With the 25th Division at Bataan Pass, Luzon (by wireless)—Several of us decided to drive to the crest of Bataan Pass, which the Division had "secured" two days earlier. Uh-fuh.

We peeled along Highway 5, high above the little Digdig river. Clouds obscured the mountain crests and veils of mist cling to the gullies. There was considerable traffic, and the roadsides were clogged here and there with groups of soldiers or Filipino guerrillas and laborers. Command post and other bivouacs dotted the slopes and ridges, a surprising lot of them.

At times we would drive perhaps a hundred yards without seeing anybody, and I'd find myself watching for snipers, but around the next turn there would be a platoon of infantry or half a hundred Filipino carriers or a bulldozer.

We paused at a roadside aid station of the first battalion 35th Regiment, and passed the time of day with Capt. Demetrios Tragis of New London, Conn., in charge of the station, and Capt. Wallace Stark, of Oklahoma City, a chaplain who must have mislaid his

A soldier moved back a little. "Let me get away from the brass," he said with a bearded grin.

The Colonel laughed and said the Japs didn't usually fire when he was around.

I can't say the same for myself, although the day before the Japs did wait until after I'd left the Third Battalion command post of the 161st Regiment before throwing in artillery that wounded one man.

S/Sgt. Ernest Petterway, of Kinston, N. C., came along, and Corp. Nestor Paquette of Dracut, Mass., and we had a lot of talk about the new point system for getting out of uniform.

Some of these boys sounded skeptical about points. Some hadn't even added up their score. They'd rather go home on "temporary duty" and fret about points later.

Peanut butter, with a little crumbled bacon added moistened with salad dressing, is a good sandwich filler.

BABSON ON BUSINESSTEN DONT'S

Babson discusses stocks, bonds, real estate and churches.

Babson Park, Mass., June 1—Don't let any possible reversion slump frighten you. In certain industries there must, of necessity, be some unemployment while switching over from war to peace work; but in most cases this slump will be only temporary. With it there will be a decline in the earnings of some companies but, after a readjustment for excess profits taxes, this should not be troublesome.

Don't buy the new low-coupon rate long-term bonds which are now being issued. Money rates will continue low for only a short time. The pendulum always has swung and is going to continue to swing. Many bonds now selling on a 3% basis will some time again be selling on a 6% basis. Much lower prices for fixed interest securities are inevitable.

Don't hold second-grade rail road securities any longer; but now take your profits. This applies to most railroad stocks and certainly to railroad income bonds which are now selling at fantastic prices. Railroad net earnings are headed for a severe postwar slump which will probably last many years.

Don't sell the general stock market. The Dow-Jones Industrial Averages will surely sell for more some time during the next twelve months than they do at the present time. This probably also applies to many utility stocks. I am especially bullish on the chain store stocks. I also like some of the convertible preferreds which combine reasonable safety with speculative possibilities.

Don't wait too long before buying the land upon which you hope to some day build a home. I don't like big commercial farm properties and am rather wary about city property; but well-located suburban land—both for homes and small farms—should be much higher as soon as building restrictions are removed.

Don't forget that inflation is with us and is bound to be more with us during the years ahead. Your local banker will give you good suggestions, free of charge, concerning such trusts.

Mrs. Warren Quits Post as Supervisor

Mrs. Sadie J. Warren, who has served as elementary supervisor of grades schools of the city, tendered her resignation to the Board of Education last evening to become effective at the end of the present school year. Ill health was the cause of the resignation.

When the position was created

Mrs. Warren was appointed to the position and has since served. The resignation was accepted with regret by the board and Trustee Rowland of the Teachers Committee spoke of the outstanding work which she had done. Her duty was to supervise the teaching staff of the elementary schools, co-ordinate the work in the various schools and have general supervision over grade school work.

Trustee Rowland presented the name of Mrs. Freda L. Dingee, now a teacher in the M.J.M. School, to succeed to the position. He said Mrs. Dingee held a master's degree and was qualified for the position and was now making a study of the work so as to be able to take over the work in the fall. He moved that she be employed as elementary supervisor of grades kindergarten to eight, inclusive, in the public schools of the city for the year 1945-1946 at the salary of $2,600 plus a living adjustment of $150, effective Sept.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

A problem that is asked more often than might be supposed is that of how a husband who has to get up early and catch a commuter's train and therefore does not want to sit up until all hours on weekday evenings can manage to get to bed early if he goes to a neighbor's house for a rubber of bridge. This letter asks: "If the hour is getting late and next day is not a rest day and the hostess still has made no move to end the game and serve refreshments (which is always customary), may my husband suggest, 'I think we'll have to make this the last rubber'?"

In addition to answering, "Certainly he may," I might add the suggestion that when accepting an invitation for an evening during the week, it would be better to accept with the understanding that ten o'clock (or whatever your hour is) is the latest that you will be able to stay. And having made this statement, it is of utmost importance to abide by it! In other words, if you say it and then stay on until half-past eleven or twelve, you will be looked upon as being merely interfering and inaccurate and no one will pay attention to the future.

Fees To Two Clergymen

Dear Mrs. Post: When two clergymen officiate at the wedding, is each one given the same amount and if so, how much? May the sum ordinarily given to one simply be divided? Or is it necessary to double the amount?

Answer: The one who performs the marriage service is often given more, but not necessarily. The amounts depend entirely upon the financial status of the bridegroom. Whatever he does give is handed by him to the best man to each clergyman. It would be very improper to give to one and ask him to divide it.

Invitation to Reception Does Not Alone Exact Gift

Dear Mrs. Post: Inasmuch as an invitation to a reception generally makes people feel that a gift is required, shall we limit invitations to out-of-town friends who couldn't possibly come to the church, so they will not feel obligated to send anything?

Answer: Invite them to the reception by all means! Very few people today feel obligated to send a present because they were invited to the house. Even those who go to the reception do not necessarily send gifts, at least not because of this factor.

Two Contingents Leave Draft Board Office Here Today

Two contingents, one for immediate induction into the armed forces and the other for pre-induction physical examinations, were sent to an army induction center in Albany this morning by the Kingston Selective Service Board.

The contingent for immediate induction numbered 19 men with Russell Frederick Boice as acting corporal, while the pre-induction group numbering 36, were in charge of Jack J. Epstein as leader, and John H. Dittus, Jr. and Robert K. Wirth as assistant leaders.

"I agree that I will use the sugar applied for home canning purposes only. If, for any reason, I should not use it for canning, I will return the equivalent in sugar stamps to my local War Price and Rationing Board. I further agree that I will furnish a report to my board of the number of quarts of food canned with this sugar and the amount of sugar actually used in canning this food. I understand that my report will become a part of my record and will be considered in future issuance of home canning and other rations to me."

Last year, Bowles asserted, many persons who had no intention of using sugar for canning applied for sugar for this purpose and in so doing "literally robbed our country of a substantial part of our limited supply."

The same thing is happening again this year, he said.

In addition to requiring applicant pledges, Bowles directed:

O.P.A. local boards in areas where fruit and vegetable crops are not now available for home canning to suspend issuing of home canning ration certificates until the canning season starts. This will apply chiefly to the northern parts of the country.

Suspension of new certificates in many other areas to give local boards a "breathing spell" and an opportunity to recalculate monthly quotas.

A special staff of O.P.A. investigators to undertake a "vigorous campaign" against the diversion of home canning sugar into bootleg liquor or illicit bottling.

The home canning sugar ration has been reduced from a maximum of 25 pounds a person last year to 15 pounds this year.

seen to be the job of the C.E.D. to bring about this situation.

Mr. Zook went on to enumerate some of the many articles that will be in demand at the close of the war, such as automobiles (34 to 36 million), vacuum cleaners, radios, refrigerators, washing machines, electric irons, clocks, etc. He spoke of the building situation as critical, with an immediate demand the first year that business gets under way for some 750,000 new dwellings of all kinds.

It was noted that the marriage rate had reached a peak for many years during the past year, and a post-war demand for dwellings for some seven million new couples was foreseen.

Began Two Years Ago

The Committee for Economic Development was the outgrowth of an idea and was started about two and a half years ago, when a group of big business men got together and formed a non-profit, non-political organization designed to assist business men and communities.

Nation-wide, it has at present some 75,000 businesses enrolled in about 2,800 communities throughout the United States, Mr. Zook said. These include 137 local committees in New York state.

The national organization furnishes gratis literature and other helps to cooperating communities and maintains a research division headed by a Harvard professor. Two booklets issued are a comprehensive tax plan, which advocates an incentive tax policy, and one dealing with post-war personnel problems.

A chart was shown illustrating the C.E.D. set up for a community organization. Mr. Zook declared that one of the first things to be taken up was to secure an industrial survey in order to find out how many persons probably could be employed in the post-war period—in industry, in commercial lines and in public works. In most cases, it was stated, such a survey shows that there are more workers than there are jobs. "This fact finding is the important job," he said, "you have a long way to go and it is essential to get to work quick and find out just what the problem is."

Board of Directors Meet

At the meeting of the board of directors President Reina reported for Raymond Garraghan, chairman of the airport committee, which had held several meetings. It was reported that the situation looked excellent for securing a Class A airport for Kingston. Harry Snyder, chairman of the board of supervisors committee, was reported in favor of the move. It was stated that a 10 per cent increase in freight rates was a great ability, in which event an airport was seen as additionally important.

Chairman Ashton of the industrial committee reported that a survey was being made to determine

United Lutheran Synod Convention

Rev. R. S. Gaenzle Is on Education and Executive Boards of Synod

The 17th annual convention of the United Lutheran Synod of New York met May 28-30 at St. John's Lutheran Church, Christopher street New York city, and in compliance with O.D.T. regulations the sessions were limited in number. Representatives, both clerical and lay, were present from the more than 400 congregations which comprise the Synod. The president, the Rev. Fred Knibbel, D.D., preached the convention sermon and served as presiding officer.

Reports were heard and discussed from the several boards and again as in past years the work of Lutheran World Action held the high point of attention. In attendance was the Rev. Ralph Long, D.D., executive director of the National Lutheran Council under whose jurisdiction the work of that agency is done. Dr. Long has recently returned from a trip to Europe and delegates listened eagerly as he told the grim tale of the condition of the Lutheran Church in Europe and of the possibilities of reaching out to strengthen with reinforcement of material and spiritual supply their marvelous heroism of faith.

He announced the completion for arrangements to place a liaison officer in Geneva, Switzerland, through whom Lutheran World Action will make contact with other bodies and administer relief.

The Synod reaffirmed the opposition of the United Lutheran Church to peace time conscription; action was also taken to commend the governor and legislature of New York state for the passage of a "fair employment act." A further resolution expressed joy at the progress being made toward peace by the San Francisco conference. A budget of slightly more than half a million dollars was adopted, an increase of $60,000 over the budget for the current year.

In the elections to the various boards of the Synod one of our local pastors, the Rev. Russell S. Gaenzle, was chosen for the Board of Education for a term of three years. The Board of Education has under its charge the work among students at Cornell and at Harvard; it supervises the two colleges of Synod, Wagner and Hartwick, as well as the theological seminary at Philadelphia. Delegates Hope To End Conference sistencies on a free settlement of Franco-Syrian differences, rather than one made at gun-point, cheered small nation delegates.

They have been worried over the future security of their own countries under a league controlled in the main by the big powers.

These developments tended to improve what diplomats are calling the "climate" of the conference although they are not directly connected with it. What is directly involved, in the view of the American delegation, is the ability of the Big-Five to win a greater degree of unity on remaining conference issues.

The Americans therefore are seeking agreement on plans for:

1. Future amendment of the charter and a decision on whether any of the five powers should be able to veto an alteration.

2. Election of judges of a new international court.

3. Measures against erring league members and decision whether they should be subject to expulsion.

4. Election of a secretary-general who would be the league's chief executive officer.

5. Treaties by which military forces will be made available at the call of the security council.

6. Statements on equal access of all member nations to raw materials and also on promotion of "full employment."

Next to disposal of the big issue, Big-Five agreement is considered essential.

Meanwhile one problem of the American delegation is that members believe it has about reached the end of its ability to make concessions on some points. Among these is a French effort to have a question of regional defense reopened and a Russian proposal for changes in a trusteeship formula.

ALMOST FOOLPROOF

London, (AP)—A new light airplane, termed "almost foolproof" by its manufacturer, will be turned out in large numbers after the war to bring private flying within the scope of the business.

Used for special purposes during the war, the "Miles Messenger" is a three or four-seat low-wing monoplane with a 160-horsepower engine. It can land and take off in 60 yards in a 15-mile wind and can clear a 30-foot obstruction 138 feet from takeoff.

Its top speed is 120 miles an hour, and it stalls at 28 miles an hour. The plane has all-round view for the pilot.

Submarines' Patrol Earns Outstanding Spot in History

By RICHARD O'MALLEY

Pearl Harbor, June 1 (AP)—A blunt-nosed Japanese freighter, serene in the knowledge that she was in home waters, churned southward one day, carrying supplies to the emperor's troops.

Crewmen slouched indolently at the rails. Then there was a terrific explosion and the vessel disappeared.

A few hundred yards away a round-faced, genial young skipper, Lt. Cmdr. George L. Street III of Norfolk, Va., turned away from his periscope and grimmed. His submarine had drawn its first blood.

It was the start of a war patrol that evoked this commendation from many officials: "It will go down in history as one of the most outstanding patrols of the war."

After her first kill the submarine knifed northward to find other targets. Once, she was forced down to 150 feet to get under the nets of Japanese fishermen, so close was she to the enemy shoreline.

The submarine bobbed to the surface one day to take on a squat lugger after the skipper decided it was a "surface target." The lugger was no sitting duck. As water boiled from the sub's bow, machine gun bullets from the enemy craft whined off her plating. With a five-inch gun the submarine silenced the lugger, then chewed it to bits. It was another close call, for a Japanese airplane swooped down on the submarine, chasing it beneath the waves.

Lt. Endicott Peabody, II, of Syracuse, N. Y., an officer of the sub's crew, led a prisoner-taking action. Peabody is the Peabody of Harvard whose galloping with a football won him an all-American berth in 1941.

One morning when the submarine found herself amid a fleet of Japanese fishing schooners, Street ordered her to the surface. "We had trouble getting alongside one large schooner," he wrote. This was overcome by ramming a five-inch shell through the craft's rigging. The submarine slipped alongside.

"Lt. Peabody and G. H. W. Grance of 12 Luceau avenue, Manchester, Conn., both armed to the teeth in terrifying fashion, jumped aboard," said the skipper's log. "The dignity of the boarding was considerably shaken when Peabody landed in a pile of fish and skidded across the deck, but their efficiency was unimpaired. With many boarshouts and bursts of machinegun fire, three thoroughly scared and whimpering fishermen were taken aboard. One Korean had hidden by jumping overboard. Found out later he thought we were Japs, thus ending his days as a 'draft dodger.'

Mr. Fannie Whittaker of Glasco had the misfortune to fall last Friday and fracture her right shoulder. She was conveyed to the Kingston Hospital.

Arthur Wright, U. S. N., is spending some time with his wife and child in this town.
